CI Logistics plug gap in Pegler's production line

Pegler Limited is well known and respected as one of the leading manufacturers of advanced plumbing, heating & engineering products in the world. Based at a single integrated site in Doncaster, Pegler is one of the largest employers in South Yorkshire with approximately 650 people.

In 2002, a fire at their plant wiped out their entire plating capacity as well as some office and assembly space. Pegler had to work fast to re-organise their short-term production needs, whilst planning the rebuild of their factory and plating plant.

They had successfully used Conveyors International S30 conveyors for many years, so had no hesitation in talking to Conveyors International about a new system. Pegler opted for the more sophisticated power and free S310 conveyor, with a system specially developed to carry parts on the plating jig. Utilising a coding system, the operators are now able to direct jigs to the correct location within the factory. The conveyor and the second line can transport parts, including Taps, Mixers and radiator valves, from final polishing/assembly line to the plating plant and then back to final assembly and packing area.

The installation of the S310 conveyor has led to much reduced manual handling in moving parts, therefore maximising floor space and facilitating a smooth and speedy recovery for Pegler's manufacturing plant.

Dave Twiggs, the production and site services manager said:

"We were very pleased with the way CI Logistics reacted, in particularly in meeting the tight deadline set. This meant we were able to continue the fire recovery programme with the minimum disruption to the production process."

"The new conveyor now allows product to be transferred automatically and efficiently from the manufacturing areas of the business to and from the plating plant"
